

Software Developer

Hi, we're Telenium Inc., Canada's lead supplier of 511 Traveler Information Systems. We're looking for a motivated, creative, and generally-awesome person to join our team. As a group that takes pride in our work it's important to us that everyone has the opportunity to drive decisions and make an impact.

Work-life balance is important to us so we maintain a flexible and low-stress environment. Our office is in the heart of downtown Winnipeg near great restaurants, the Forks, the MTS Centre and is easily accessible by bus.

Our team members are used to wearing more than a few hats and we run our own development stack using fully open-source tools. For you, this means full-stack development which includes: front-end development, back-end process work, and getting your hands on data-center hardware. We want to hear your thoughts on design decisions and encourage you to help us choose the right tool for the job.

Here's what will make us excited:

- Experience with Python and Javascript. Other scripting experience is good too.
- You feel at 127.0.0.1 in a Linux environment.
- This isn't your first SQL rodeo.
- A git rebase doesn't scare you, but you're careful when rewriting history. You appropriately use the dark side of the --force when necessary.
- You've got great communication skills.
- You have a Computer Science/Engineering degree.
- You've been developing for somewhere in the neighbourhood of three or more years.

For extra credit, maybe you've gotten your feet wet with:

- PostgreSQL.
- Creative HTML/CSS/web design.
- GIS data and systems.
- Native iOS or Android development.
- The C language.
- Web server configuration (especially Apache/NGINX).
- VoIP systems.

Not a must, but if you're not shy about sharing your github we'd love to take a look. Bonus points if there are any other cool skills or quirks you can tell us about.

If this sounds like your kind of place, send your resume along to www.telenium.ca/jobs.html
